

Report on the webinar “Research Ethics and How to Avoid Publishing in Predatory Journals” held on 15th October 2022

Objectives: The objective of this webinar is to support researchers and faculty members with knowledge and awareness about research ethics and how to avoid predatory journals while publishing their papers. In this, we have discussed the needed things to be followed in order to successfully increase their knowledge in submitting articles to high-quality journals and make their research visible to the world.

The LNMIIT Central Library

cordially invites you to a Webinar on

RESEARCH ETHICS & How to Avoid Publishing in Predatory Journals

15th Oct '22 3.30 pm

The speakers of this webinar will provide guidelines on research ethics and how to conduct research responsibly and ensure a high ethical standard. They will guide on the ethical standards researchers should follow while publishing their works.

Dr. Priya Sande

Publishing in predatory journals is unethical because predatory journals lack the standards and best practices established by the scholarly publishing community, which evaluate the research and improve the quality of the published work.

Mr. Ranbir Sedhey

We had 95 participants during this webinar, and they were faculty members, research scholars, students, and library professionals from all over India.

There were 298 registrations for this webinar.

When we released the recording of the webinar on the Library's YouTube Channel for the benefit of those who had registered but could not attend the webinar it turned out to be a big hit. In just one day there are 122 views from all over India! The webinar recording is becoming popular.

My sincere thanks to the speakers Prof. G C Tikkiwal, Dr. Priya Sandey, BITS Pilani and Mr. Ranbir Sedhey from IEEE for their rich and relevant content and wonderful talks/ presentations which drew the audience in and held their attention for nearly one and a half hours. Our Master of Ceremony, Mr. Nischay Thapar did a brilliant job of anchoring the event.

We are grateful to you Sir, for your unconditional support and advice you always give in organizing such events.

Last but not the least, I must thank the entire library team for their hard word and commitment
